A Guide to Qualifications for the Royal Electrical and Mechanical Engineers (REME) and what they mean in Scotland

qualifications framework

So you've been in the armed forces and are about to enter civilian life in Scotland. There's a lot to think about and one of the main priorities may well be getting a job. You'll have gained some qualifications whilst being enlisted, not to mention a whole wealth of skills and experience. But what does this all mean? That's where the Scottish Credit and Qualifications Framework (SCQF) can help.

What is the SCQF?

- It's Scotland's lifelong learning Framework.
- It covers a wide variety of qualifications from school, college, university and the workplace.
- It clearly shows that qualifications have the same worth whether achieved through school, college, university or the workplace.

What can the SCQF do?

- It can help you understand more clearly the qualifications landscape in Scotland.
- It can help you plan your future learning journey.
- It can help employers and institutions understand the qualifications you have gained.
- It can help you understand your transferable skills.
- It can help you progress in your learning and gain credit for what you've achieved.

The SCQF diagram

- Below is the official diagram for the SCQF. You can see all the standard Scottish qualifications from level 1 (easiest) to level 12 (most difficult).
- There are over 11,500 qualifications on the SCQF and around 900 that recognise learning undertaken in the workplace or locations other than learning institutions.

But what about the qualifications you gained in Service?

These are a few of the qualifications available to REME soldiers in service. Some of the qualifications you gained while serving may be recognised on the SCQF or may be English qualifications and therefore you may be concerned whether they will be recognised and accepted in Scotland by employers or by educational institutions.

Name of qualification	Awarding body	It's not on the SCQF but would be around this level
Level 2 Diploma in Engineering Technology	EAL	5
Level 2 Certificate in Warehouse and Storage	Multiple	5
Level 3 Diploma in Engineering Technology (Progressive)	EAL	6
Level 3 Diploma in Aircraft Maintenance Engineering Technology	EAL	6
Level 3 Certificate in Logistics Operations	Multiple	6
Level 3 NVQ Extended Diploma in Aeronautical Engineering	Multiple	6
Level 3 NVQ Extended Diploma in Engineering Maintenance	Multiple	6
Level 3 NVQ Extended Diploma in Fabrication and Welding	Multiple	6
Level 5 HND in Automotive Engineering	Pearson (Edexcel)	8
Level 5 HND in Mechanical Engineering	Pearson (Edexcel)	8
Level 5 Foundation Degree in Aeronautical Engineering	Portsmouth University	8
BSc in Electronic Systems Engineering	Portsmouth University	10

Note: the level number in the qualification title refers to the level on the English Framework.

There may be qualifications that you gained whilst in the REME that are not listed.

What other help is out there?

There is a variety of other organisations in Scotland that can assist you in making that next step:

Military Education Centre (if still serving)

Your unit or your Education Staff can advise you where to find out about accreditation opportunities in the REME. In addition, they can advise on funding available to help you gain a recognised civilian qualification.

Career Transition Partnership (CTP)

The official provider of Armed Forces resettlement, the CTP provides resettlement services for those leaving the Royal Navy, Army, Royal Air Force and Royal Marines. Regardless of time served, all members of the Armed Forces can benefit from CTP support when leaving Service.
